FACTS

The Law: Possessing images

- Having sexting photos or videos on your phone or computer

If you are under the age of 18, the law sees you as a child. Therefore, if you have any indecent images or videos of somebody who is under 18, including yourself, you would technically be in possession of an indecent image of a child. This is an offence under the Protection of Children Act 1978 and the Criminal Justice Act 1988.

FACTS

The Law: Sending Images

- Sending photos or videos

If you are under 18 and you send, upload or forward indecent images or videos to friends or boyfriends/girlfriends, this would also be breaking the law, even if they are photos of yourself (“selfies”).

FACTS

The Law - Receiving Images

- If you are in possession of images of a sexual nature of someone under 18 (even if it is your friend or boy/girl friend), you are committing an offence.
- Offenders can be placed on the sex offenders register and can be given a prison sentence.
- This is also the case if you have kept or printed out an image sent to you by a friend

Consequences

- Although the Police may not prosecute a teenager for sending or possessing indecent images, this could go down on their record.
- This could then affect any future employment such as teaching etc.
- Also could affect travel – you can't go to America with a criminal record!
